

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF NEVADA

JENNIFER HIXSON, }
vs. } Plaintiff, } Case No. 2:12-cv-00871-RCJ-PAL
CITY OF LAS VEGAS, } Defendant. } ORDER
(Mot for Sanctions - Dkt. #26)

Before the court is Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(c) (Dkt. #26). The court has considered the Motion, Defendant's Opposition (Dkt. #29), Plaintiff's Reply (Dkt. #30), and the arguments of counsel at hearings conducted on May 21, 2013, and June 25, 2013.

BACKGROUND

The complaint in this case was filed in state court and removed (Dkt. #1) May 23, 2012. It involves a hostile work environment claim. Plaintiff alleges that she was employed by the Defendant in the Detention and Enforcement Division in Las Vegas, Nevada from February 2002, until she resigned on July 15, 2010. See Complaint attached as Exhibit “A” to Petition for Removal (Dkt. #1), ¶¶7, 8. Plaintiff alleges that she was subjected to a hostile work environment from approximately April 2009, through the date of her resignation. Id., ¶8. She was in a relationship with Sergeant Glen Lewis until approximately April 2009, when he began making disparaging remarks and comments about her gender and sexual orientation. Id., ¶9. Lewis instituted internal complaints against Hixson in May 2009, which were unfounded and retaliatory. Id., ¶10. Plaintiff complained to her direct supervisor, Lieutenant Smith, on May 14, 2009, that Lewis was creating a hostile work environment and retaliating against her. Id., ¶14. Lieutenant Smith responded that Sergeant Lewis had the choice to initiate a formal complaint. Id. In October 2009, Plaintiff complained to Lieutenant Smith that she was unable

1 to handle the stress of the hostile work environment Lewis created. Id., ¶18. However, nothing was 2 done. Id. Plaintiff complained in person to the deputy chief in December 2010, and conveyed that she 3 was worried Sergeant Lewis was going to cause her physical harm. Id., ¶20. Nothing was done. Id., 4 ¶21.

5 In March 2010, Plaintiff complained to Human Resources that she was being subjected to 6 gender discrimination and hostile work environment. Id., ¶22. Human Resources did not interview the 7 Plaintiff, but only took a cursory statement. Id., ¶23. Sergeant Lewis filed two hostile work 8 environment claims against the Plaintiff with Human Resources less than two months later. Id., ¶25.
9 Plaintiff was interviewed by Human Resources about Sergeant Lewis' complaint. Id., ¶26. On July 15, 10 2010, Plaintiff was constructively discharged by being forced to tender her resignation. Id., ¶27. Based 11 on these allegations, Plaintiff has asserted claims for gender discrimination and violation of Title VII 12 and NRS 613.310, hostile work environment in violation of Title VII, constructive discharge, and 13 negligent training/supervision.

14 In the current motion, Hixson seeks Rule 37(c) sanctions for the City of Las Vegas' failure to 15 disclose a relevant email regarding her allegations of workplace harassment. Plaintiff has a copy of the 16 email, but the City did not produce it in discovery. The City also failed to supplement its discovery 17 disclosures after receiving a copy of the email. Plaintiff requests an order sanctioning the Defendant 18 by: 1) an adverse inference instruction pursuant to NRS § 47.250(3); 2) monetary sanctions in an 19 amount equal to the cost of hiring an outside IT vendor who should be permitted to investigate the 20 City's IT System for additional missing items that are potentially relevant to Plaintiff's claims; and 3) 21 attorneys fees and costs for having to file this motion.

22 Plaintiff produced a chain of email correspondence between Michael Weyland, a union 23 representative assisting her, and City employee Dan Tarwater from April 6, 2010, through April 7, 24 2010. The email chain is attached as Exhibit "1" to the motion. The City produced a version of the 25 email chain which is attached as Exhibit "2". The City's version of the email chain does not contain the 26 April 7, 2010, 8:28 a.m. email from Dan Tarwater to Michael Weyland. In the email, Tarwater
27 comments that perhaps Weyland will have the good sense to have the Plaintiff retract her hostile work 28 environment claim.

1 Plaintiff filed her hostile work environment claim March 10, 2010, in an email to Louisa 2 Tuilagi, an employee in the Employee Relations Division of the City. Tuilagi sent a copy of the 3 complaint to Tarwater March 31, 2010. On April 6, 2010, City employee Karen Coyne asked Tarwater
4 and Michelle Freeman if they had time to discuss the Plaintiff's claim because of her concern the matter
5 was nearly a month old and Plaintiff verbally communicated her complaints March 9, 2010. Tarwater 6 then sent the email that "maybe he will have the good sense to have her retract her claim, if not we are 7 moving forward."

8 Counsel for Plaintiff communicated with counsel for the City pointing out that the City had not 9 produced a copy of Tarwater's April 7, 2010, 8:28 a.m. email to Weyland. The letter was addressed to 10 discuss the City's failure to properly engage in discovery by failing to produce relevant evidence under 11 Rule 37 and Rule 26(e) in initial disclosures or supplemental disclosures. The letter requested that the 12 City supplement its initial disclosures by April 22, 2013, indicating that if supplemental disclosures 13 were not served, the Plaintiff would "seek appropriate remedies after formal conferral."

14 Plaintiff acknowledges that the City produced voluminous documents in this case. However, 15 the City's failure to produce the April 7, 2010, email is suspicious and prejudicial to Plaintiff because 16 Tarwater's motives are relevant. A reasonable juror could question Tarwater's credibility and bias 17 when he investigated the Plaintiff's hostile work environment claim. Thus, Rule 37(c) sanctions are 18 appropriate for the failure to disclose this email unless the failure was substantially justified or 19 harmless. Plaintiff argues it is the City's burden, as the party facing sanctions for failure to disclose, to 20 establish that its failure to comply with its discovery obligations was either substantially justified or 21 harmless. The failure to produce this email creates an inference the City is also withholding other 22 potentially relevant information, and calls into doubt the City's efforts to properly preserve and 23 maintain electronically stored information. It also suggests the City failed to send litigation hold letters 24 to appropriate personnel to preserve relevant evidence. For these reasons sanctions are appropriate.

25 The City opposes the motion maintaining that the Plaintiff filed it without an attempt to meet 26 and confer. The City points out that Plaintiff has had a copy of the document throughout the case and 27 that she produced it in her initial disclosures on July 25, 2012. The City represents that on April 7, 28 2010, when the Tarwater email was sent, the City's email system permanently deleted all messages

1 after 45 days unless a sender or a recipient affirmatively saved the document to a folder. Neither 2 Plaintiff's union representative, Mr. Weyland, nor Human Resources Director Dan Tarwater saved the 3 April 7, 2010, email in the City's system. Therefore, the system automatically deleted it after 45 days.
4 The City's opposition is supported by the affidavit of Raymond Waber, a City of Las Vegas System
5 Administration Specialist, who attests that prior to June 2010, the City's email system automatically 6 purged all emails after a 45-day period unless the emails were affirmatively transferred to a personal 7 PST folder by the end user. Waber Affidavit, Exhibit "A", ¶3. In June 2010, the City implemented a 8 system known as Quest Archive Manager. Id., ¶4. All emails stored at this time in PST folders were 9 loaded into the Quest Archive Manager system in a "read-only" state for central storage in searching, 10 and have not been purged. Id. New messages created from June 2010, to September 2011, are 11 automatically purged by the system after 90 days unless a user affirmatively moved messages to 12 extended retention folders. Id., ¶5. In September 2011, the City changed to a 7-year retention policy 13 for all email messages. Id., ¶6.

14 The opposition is also supported by the affidavit of Betsy Comella which is attached as Exhibit 15 "B". Ms. Comella is a Legal Assistant II with the Las Vegas City Attorney's Office in the civil 16 division. Id., ¶1, In August 2012, she was asked to conduct an email search to respond to discovery 17 requests served on Plaintiff's counsel August 6, 2012. Id., ¶2. She conducted a search as requested of 18 the City's email archive system, Quest Software Archive Manager, for any emails mentioning Jennifer 19 Hixson between August 9, 2009, and April 24, 2012. Id. The results of her email search were 20 produced in the City of Las Vegas' responses to Plaintiff's request for production of documents 21 September 24, 2012. Id., ¶4. Her search for responsive documents did not turn up the email from 22 Tarwater to Weyland involved in this motion. Id., ¶5.

23 The City argues that the motion should be denied because the motion does not contain a 24 statement that Plaintiff's counsel attempted to meet and confer to resolve this issue without filing a 25 motion as required by LR 26-7(b). Additionally, the City argues that because Plaintiff has a copy of the 26 email, any failure to disclose it is harmless, and Plaintiff has not been prejudiced. Finally, the City 27 maintains that sanctions are inappropriate under Rule 37(e) that prohibits imposition of sanctions on a 28 // /

1 party “for failing to provide electronically stored information lost as a result of the routine, good-faith 2 operation of an electronic information system” absent exceptional circumstances.

3 The Plaintiff replies that the City’s arguments of “no harm, no foul” were rejected by the court
4 in the Zubulake decision, 220 F.R.D. 212 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (“Zubulake IV”). Plaintiff cites email
5 correspondence produced by the City in this case prior to the time she filed her hostile work
6 environment claim which suggests that the City’s representation about its automatic purging system 7 may not be accurate. The City produced hundreds of pages of emails in this case, and Plaintiff believes 8 the City failed to communicate its e-discovery obligations to its employees which has caused her 9 serious damage. The City had an obligation to preserve electronically stored information (“ESI”) at the 10 time the evidence was destroyed, the records were destroyed with a culpable state of mind, and the 11 destroyed evidence was relevant to Plaintiff’s claims. Plaintiff acknowledges that her request for 12 sanctions must be proportional to the violation. However, she argues that she should be restored to the 13 position she would have been in had the City met its discovery obligations, and that the sanctions she 14 seeks are proportional.

15 At the May 21, 2013, hearing, the court heard arguments from counsel and continued the 16 hearing for 30 days to allow Plaintiff’s counsel to review Defendant’s responses to ESI requests, and 17 allow Plaintiff’s counsel to depose Mr. Waber to question him about the City’s ESI preservation 18 policies and issues addressed in his affidavit. At the June 25, 2013, hearing, counsel for Plaintiff 19 indicated that he had deposed Mr. Waber and had no reason to believe that the City had intentionally 20 destroyed relevant evidence. Rather, counsel for Plaintiff argued that the City failed to preserve 21 relevant ESI after it was on notice of potential litigation. Mr. Tarwater testified at his deposition that 22 the City had not sent a litigation hold letter to City employees at or near the time Plaintiff filed her 23 complaint with the EEO office. For those reasons Plaintiff argues that sanctions are warranted.
24 Counsel for the City argued that the City Attorney’s Office was not involved in this matter until June 25 2011, when Plaintiff filed a formal complaint. The email was authored in April 2010, and at that time 26 the City’s system automatically purged emails after 45 days unless someone saved them to a folder.
27 Counsel for the City acknowledged that no litigation hold letter was sent to City employees before the 28

///

1 email was purged. However, the City has now modified its document retention policies and 2 communicated the need to preserve documents, including ESI, to its employees.

DISCUSSION

4 Spoliation is the destruction or significant alteration of evidence, or the failure to preserve 5 property for another's use as evidence in pending or reasonably foreseeable litigation. United States v.
Kitsap Physicians Svs., 314 F.3d 995, 1001 (9th Cir. 2002) (citing Akiona v. United States, 938 F.2d 6 158, 161 (9th Cir. 1991)) (a party engages in spoliation "as a matter of law only if they had 'some 7 notice that the documents were potentially relevant' to the litigation before they were destroyed"); 7-8 37A Moore's Federal Practice - Civil § 37A.55. A party must preserve evidence it knows or should 9 know is relevant to a claim or defense of any party, or that may lead to the discovery of relevant 10 evidence. Moore's at § 37A.55; see also United States v. Kitsap Physicians Serv., 314 F.3d 995, 1001 11 (9th Cir. 2002); In re Napster, 462 F.Supp.2d 1060, 1067 (N.D. Cal. 2006) (citing Nat'l Ass'n of 12 Radiation Survivors v. Turnage, 115 F.R.D. 543, 556-57 (N.D. Cal. 1987) (noting, "[a]s soon as a 13 potential claim is identified, a litigant is under a duty to preserve evidence which it knows or reasonably 14 should know is relevant to the action"). The duty to preserve arises not only during litigation, but also 15 extends to the period before litigation when a party should reasonably know that evidence may be 16 relevant to anticipated litigation. In re Napster, 462 F.Supp.2d at 1067 (duty to preserve begins when a 17 party should have known that the evidence may be relevant to future litigation).

19 District courts may impose sanctions for spoliation of evidence as part of their inherent power to 20 "manage their own affairs so as to achieve the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases." Napster, 21 462 F.Supp.2d at 1066 (citing Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 43 (1991)). Courts may 22 sanction parties responsible for spoliation of evidence in three ways. First, a court can instruct the jury 23 that it may draw an adverse inference to the party or witness responsible for destroying the evidence.
 24 See Glover v. BIC Corp., 6 F.3d 1318, 1329 (9th Cir. 1993). Second, a court can exclude witness 25 testimony based upon the destroyed evidence and proffered by the party responsible for destroying the 26 evidence. Id. at 1329. Third, the court can dismiss the claim of the party responsible for destroying the 27 evidence. Dismissal, however, is only appropriate where "a party has engaged deliberately in deceptive 28 practices that undermine the integrity of judicial proceedings." Leon v. IDX Systems Corp., 464 F.3d

1 951, 958 (9th Cir, 2006) (citing Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. Natural Beverage Distributors, 69 F.3d 337, 2 348 (9th Cir. 1995). Before imposing the “harsh sanction” of dismissal, a court must consider the 3 following factors: (a) the public’s interest in expeditious resolution of litigation; (b) the court’s need to 4 manager its dockets; (c) the risk of prejudice to the party seeking sanctions; (d) the public policy
 5 favoring disposition of cases on their merits; and (e) the availability of less drastic sanctions. See Leon, 6 464 F.3d at 958 (citing Anheuser-Busch, 69 F.3d at 348).

7 Lastly, the court may award sanctions in the form of attorney’s fees against a party or counsel 8 who acts “in bad faith, vexatiously, wantonly, or for oppressive reasons.” Id. at 961. Before awarding 9 such sanctions, however, a court must make an express finding that the sanctioned party’s behavior 10 amounted to “bad faith.” Id. A party “demonstrates bad faith by delaying or disrupting the litigation or 11 hampering enforcement of a court order.” Id. Where the court finds a party has acted in bad faith, any 12 award of attorney’s fees must be reasonable. Id.

13 The Ninth Circuit has held that a party does not engage in spoliation when, without notice of the 14 evidence’s potential relevance, it destroys the evidence according to its policy or in the normal course 15 of its business. United States v. $40,955.00 in U.S. Currency, 554 F.3d 752, 758 (9th Cir. 2009) (no 16 indication that evidence destroyed with knowledge that it was relevant to litigation) (citing United 17 States v. Kitsap Physicians Service, 314 F.3d 995, 1001-02 (9th Cir. 2002) (no spoliation where 18 evidence destroyed in normal course of business and no indication that relevant to anticipated 19 litigation); State of Idaho Potato Comm’n v. G&T Terminal Packaging, Inc., 425 F.3d 708, 720 (9th 20 Cir. 2005) (same)).

21 A party on notice litigation is reasonably foreseeable has a duty to preserve evidence. It is often 22 repeated that we live in a litigious age. It is not reasonably foreseeable that every internal employment 23 complaint may result in litigation if not resolved to the employee’s satisfaction. However, when an 24 employee claims that she has been subjected to conduct or employment actions that, if true, would 25 amount to state or federal law violations, the prudent employer should take affirmative steps to see that 26 documents and information relevant to her claims and the employers defenses are preserved and not lost 27 in the ordinary course of business. The court need not determine the outer markers of what notice is 28 ///

1 sufficient to put an employer on notice litigation is reasonably foreseeable when an employee makes an 2 internal complaint of an adverse employment action or employment dispute to resolve this motion.

3 The record in this case is insufficient to support a finding that the City was on notice Ms. Hixson 4 contemplated litigation sufficient to trigger a duty to preserve electronically stored information by 5 suspending its then-existing practice of automatically purging emails after 45 days. Plaintiff sent an 6 email to a City of Las Vegas Personnel Analyst in the Employee Relations Division complaining she 7 was being subjected to a hostile work environment and discrimination on March 10, 2010. She referred 8 to this email as a formal complaint. Plaintiff also indicated that she had previously discussed her 9 concerns through her chain of command, that no one had been helpful to her, and that Deputy Chief 10 Freeman told the Plaintiff that Freeman did not believe that Plaintiff was being harassed or subjected to a 11 hostile work environment. Counsel for the City argues that an internal report of this nature is 12 insufficient to trigger a duty to preserve potentially relevant evidence especially when City employee 13 relations personnel had not communicated with the City Attorney's Office. The court categorically 14 rejects the City's arguments that unless the City's lawyers have been notified of the potential for 15 litigation the duty to preserve has not been triggered. A contrary finding would encourage managers and 16 human resource personnel to fail to advise counsel of reasonably foreseeable litigation to avoid the duty 17 to preserve potentially relevant evidence.

18 Here, Plaintiff resigned July 15, 2010, and asserts she was constructively discharged. Nothing in 19 the record suggests that on or before the date of her resignation, the Plaintiff threatened litigation, or 20 informed the City that she had retained counsel about her employment disputes. There is no evidence 21 before the court that at or near the time Plaintiff tendered her resignation, she claimed that she was 22 resigning because she had been sexually harassed, discriminated against, or subjected to a hostile work 23 environment. By July 15, 2010, when Plaintiff resigned, the email system the City used as the time 24 would have already purged Mr. Tarwater's April 7, 2010, email unless it was saved to a folder. The 25 complaint alleges that Plaintiff filed her NERC complaint September 7, 2010. Once the City received 26 notice of the NERC complaint litigation was certainly foreseeable. However, nothing in the record 27 indicates that the City was notified Plaintiff had retained counsel, made a pre filing demand , or notified 28 the City she was thinking about filing a lawsuit before the Plaintiff filed her NERC complaint. Under

1 these circumstances, the court finds the City was not sufficiently on notice of potential litigation
2 involving Ms. Hixson's employment to trigger a duty to suspend its then existing practice of purging 3 emails after 45 days.

4 The court gave counsel for Plaintiff an opportunity to take the deposition of Mr. Waber to 5 question him about the City's ESI preservation policies, and the issues addressed in his affidavit
6 supporting the City's opposition to this motion. At the June 25, 2013, hearing, counsel for Plaintiff 7 acknowledged that he had no reason to believe that the city had intentionally destroyed relevant evidence.
8 Plaintiff also acknowledges that the City produced voluminous documents in this case. The affidavit of 9 Ms. Comella attests that she conducted a broad search of the City's email archive system for any emails 10 mentioning Jennifer Hixson between August 9, 2009, and April 24, 2012. The results of this email search 11 were produced in the City of Las Vegas' Responses to Plaintiff's Request for Production of Documents 12 served September 24, 2012. This search did not turn up the email from Mr. Tarwater to Mr. Weyland 13 involved in this motion. The court is satisfied that the email was not produced because it was not saved, 14 and automatically purged 45 days after it was generated before the City was on notice litigation was 15 reasonably foreseeable.

16 Finally, the court finds that Rule 37(c) sanctions are not appropriate for the City's failure to 17 supplement its discovery disclosures after Plaintiff produced the Tarwater email to the City in her 18 disclosures. Rule 26(e) requires a party who has made a disclosure under Rule 26(a) or responded to a 19 formal discovery request to supplement or correct its disclosures or responses "in a timely manner if the 20 party learns that in some material respect the disclosure or response is incomplete or incorrect, and if the 21 additional or corrective information has not otherwise been made known to the other parties during the 22 discovery process or in writing." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(e)(1)(A). Plaintiff had the email. Therefore the 23 additional or corrective information was made known to the parties during the discovery process. Rule 24 26(e) is not intended to require redundant disclosures.

25 For all of the reasons stated,

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 IT IS ORDERED that Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(c) (Dkt.
2 #26) is DENIED.

Dated this 10th day of July, 2013.

Peggy A. Leen
Peggy A. Leen
United States Magistrate Judge